Hamburg Community Fine Art & Craft Fair

Saturday, October 8, 2016

9am to 4pm

In the tradition of celebrating Michigan art and culture, Hamburg Library proudly announces its 8th Annual Fine Arts & Craft Fair. Unearth an extensive selection of pottery, sculpture, wood carving and textiles. Behold the beauty of watercolors, oils, acrylics and pastels. Tour the world via photograph, pencil, and ink. Dive into a treasure trove of hand-made jewelry, gem stones, and glasswork. Nibble on home-baked treats and light refreshments.

Explore. Shop. Eat.

This show is juried. Artist/Vendors: Application deadline is September 23, 2016. For complete information, entry application and fees, contact the library at (810) 231-1771 or visit website at www.hamburglibrary.org

Genealogy Series

Wednesdays at 6:30 pm. Learn about a variety of genealogy topics and resources with Sarah Hatter. Sign up for the whole series, or pick and choose your classes. Beginners through advanced welcome. Registration Required. All classes are free.

Genealogy Series is Sponsored by:
The Genealogy Fairy Grant

September 14: Getting Started with Your Genealogy Search

Learn how to get started in your family history search using what you have in your attic, library resources, and popular websites such as Ancestry.com. This class includes an introduction to U.S. Federal census records and vital records.

September 21: Ancestry Library Edition

Find out how your library's subscription to Ancestry Library Edition can help you fill in the blanks of your family's history. Included in the databases are census records, vital records, immigration records, and more from all over the world.

September 28: Additional Websites - FindAGrave and FamilySearch

Explore two more genealogy websites: FindAGrave, which documents burial places of people throughout the world, and FamilySearch, which carries extensive records and documents useful in your family history research.

October 5: Finding Your Ancestors in Historical Newspapers

Newspapers are the diary of a community, and are a not-to-be-missed resource when looking for details of your family history. Learn how to find old newspapers both online and in libraries, and how to search online newspaper databases most effectively.

October 19: Discovering Your Ancestor's Military Records

Understanding your family's military experiences will give you a greater understanding of their lives. Learn how to review military records, focusing on US wars, and find out what you can learn about the sacrifices they made for their country.

October 26: Strategies for Breaking Through Your Genealogy Brick Wall

What do you do when you hit a "brick wall" in your genealogy research? Discuss strategies to get beyond your trouble spots and breathe new life into your research. Bring your own brick wall problems to the class & get advice on what to do next.
